

Wants to Go to Congress

Information regarding Edward E. Chase of Cape Elizabeth, Native of Blue Hill, Maine, Resident of Cape Elizabeth, Maine, since 1892, Graduate of University of Maine, 1912, Register of Professional Engineers, 1913-1916. Assistant Clerk Maine House of Representatives, 1917. Enlisted in First Maine Heavy Field Artillery, 1918, and served with Third Anti-Aircraft Battalion in America and France until May 1919.

With Boyer & Small, dealers in securities, 1919 to 1925. Organized Maine Securities Company, an investment company specializing in Maine Securities, of which he is now president. Has always advocated local ownership of Maine enterprises as a business policy.

Served two terms Maine Legislature, representing Cape Elizabeth and Scarborough. Prepared and presented act to legislate for completion of topographic mapping of Maine, which was adopted by the Maine Geological Survey as its standard method of method to other States.

Presented and had in charge University of Maine Mill Tax Act, which placed University upon definite financial foundation free from political influences. Trustee of University of Maine, member of "Maine Railroads", Chairman of Maine delegation of New England National Committee. Now represents Maine on New England Governors' Executive Committee. Members of executive committee, which drafted original Administrative Code Bill, and served on State Advisory Committee in Corbett referendum campaign. Member of American Legion and of the Portland Club.

Mr. Chase speaks thus plainly and to the point as follows:

"I am a candidate for the Republican nomination for Representative to Congress from the First Maine Congressional District, comprising York, Cumberland, Oxford and Sagadahoc Counties.

"Appreciating the compliment implied by many requests that I should run for Governor, and realizing the greater personal advantage afforded in a contest among numerous candidates, I have decided, nevertheless, that I can perform a greater public service by standing for Congress in a cause which deserves a Republican candidate.

"The issue of national prohibition is sharply defined in this Congressional District. Our Congressmen, Mr. Beedy and Mr. Partridge, are supporters of prohibition, and only recently voted against repealing Congress even the right to vote upon the issue. I believe that the existing situation under prohibition is a national disgrace, a disgusting hypocrisy of civilization which undermines popular respect for all law, inevitably breeding corruption in public administration, increasingly perilous as affording the criminal element its principal financial support.

"For those who agree with me, the motto must be keep your eye on the ball. Prohibition is the outstanding issue. We are trying to advance the cause of temperance, and to strike at the heart of organized crime, by demanding a change. The only practical way to change existing conditions under national prohibition is to elect to Congress representatives who will fight for a change.

"I do not intend to ask for votes as favors. This is a campaign of principles, not of personality. Whatever is achieved will be through the efforts of Republican men and women who accept me as their instrument in this cause, and who volunteer to do the work essential to complete organization and final success."

PORTABLE WOOD-SAWING MACHINE HAZARDS

Because of the many fatal and near fatal injuries suffered throughout the state this winter, following the rupturing of flywheels and saws on portable wood sawing machines, it becomes necessary to issue a warning to owners and operators.

Investigations reveal that in some cases make-shift flywheels have had their rim speeds built up by improper pulley ratios to nearly two miles a minute. One instance is reported where a flywheel, cracked by fire, ruptured as it came up to speed, killing the user. Cracked saws, mechanism out of balance and the like have accounted for other near-disasters.

A better appreciation of the terrific forces built up in circular saws and flywheels can be had by a consideration of the recent case in Eastern Maine, when a 23 1/2 pound fragment of a flywheel rim traveled a quarter of a mile to test through the side of a house and bury itself in the opposite wall, narrowly missing one of the occupants.

Many wood-sawing rigs are made up of cut-off parts of automobile engines and mill scrap with utter disregard for the factors so necessary to the safe operation of such machines. Cracked saws are used to the jeopardy of users and the utter disregard of increased hazard following an increase of saw diameter is deplorable. Too little attention is paid to balance and pulley ratios as well as to pulley themselves, the latter constituting a typical flywheel hazard under extreme speeds. Heating in the bearings is often transmitted to saws to produce unforeseen stresses.

It is urged that the quality, design and strength of parts used in the construction of these wood-sawing rigs be given serious consideration, also that the best device, founded on reliable data, be had before putting such machinery into operation.

Flywheels should be enclosed in the heaviest possible steel housings, supported by anchored by bolts to the machine frames. Saws should have a maximum coverage compatible with the operation of same. The hazards of bolts and pulleys are known to all and can be easily eliminated by a box-like cover made removable.

ANNUAL LYFORD SPEAKING CONTEST

Open to Young Men in Three New England States

The twenty-third annual Lyford Inter-scholastic Prize Speaking Contest is to be held at Colby College on the afternoon and evening of Friday, May 6. The prizes, which aggregate one hundred dollars, are the gift of Will Hartwell Lyford, of Chicago, Ill., a graduate of Colby in the class of 1879, and are given for the purpose of stimulating interest in public speaking among preparatory school boys of Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

It is estimated that the "Lyfords" have brought to the Colby campus more than 1,500 young orators, all of whom have participated in the preliminary contests, held in the afternoon, and some 250 in the final contest, held in the evening. There are four cash prizes, fifty, twenty-five, fifteen and ten dollars. The rules governing the contest are simple, chief of them being that contestants must be enrolled at least one month before the date of the contest, and that the excerpts of orations given shall be taken from speeches delivered in comparatively recent years.

Several Maine and Massachusetts schools have already asked for entry blanks. Full information can be had by writing to Prof. Herbert C. Libby of the Colby faculty.

Primitive Conditions

As R. L. Cummings Sees It

When I read an article from your friend, Mitchell, some time ago, saying that he had concluded that we must go back to primitive conditions and live off the land and hominy, I didn't believe a word of it, but I read the news that Congress had set us back fifty years to the past, I conclude that unless we can send those crazy folks to some nice quiet place, where they can't do damage to the trusting public, they may be right.

The dangerous condition of their mind is apparent from their own acts. Flying into a righteous rage and overthrowing their bosses and then in a few days getting feeding from their hand and doing up the people worse than their leaders contemplated in the first place.

They surely have turned a double back somersault, quicker than our Maine Legislature did in the case of the Bingham Dam (Dead River storage) when they gave it away and then didn't dare to go home until they repeated their own act.

What a terribly frenzied frame of mind that poor Congressmen must have been in when they with loud voices declared that unless steps were taken at once to balance that budget, in sixty days there would not be a bank in the United States that could meet its depositors. On the other hand if his mind was not unbalanced, what a terrible accusation it would be against our banking system and our International bankers that have been using that and about everything else.

Here are some reasons I think their minds are the worse of the two.

It is an acknowledged fact the world over that our nation has the resources and wealth such as no other nation on earth now has or ever did have. Here is the way it figures out: National wealth from three to four hundred billions. Annual income from property and business from other nations, $25,000,000,000. National debt, $17,000,000,000. Paid on the national debt between 1919 and 1929, $8,500,000,000, now because we have been fooled by unwise leaders, imposing on the public credit, we have been slipping behind about $2,000,000,000. This learned politician shouts about our nation becoming "bankrupt," and tells us how these European nations that owe us the $28,000,000,000, that they say they can't make their agreed yearly payments of $245,000,000 annually and from which our President has always been over-kind to all Europeans, has granted them a respite, are now selling American dollars below par and attacking our credit.

Funny isn't it? A weak doctor saying to his strong creditor, "I can't pay you, but you must pay me. Your credit is not good because you have lent us too much money, it proves your incompetence."

This so frightened these wise statesmen that we have sent to Washington to enjoy nice salaries that they have soaked the 100,000,000 of us common people that are having hard times to provide shelter, food and clothing, with a federal tax that will add about $45.00 each year to the cost of living of each family of five.

Various papers have been very audibly sighing and wailing over what they term "Soaking the rich." Here are two items that will show that Congress now feels the same way.

They repealed the surtax of 65% on incomes of $5,000,000 and over. They admit, well, even in these hard times reduce the government revenue $17,000,000. In this same act they have levied a tax of $11,000,000 on matches. 90% of all the matches are used by people of small means.

How do these things compare? The man that has the income of five millions or more would naturally own about one-half of such a State as our State of Maine. Had this income tax been allowed to remain, the poorest of these $5,000,000 a year income men would have been retaining an income of $1,750,000 to live on or lay by to look at.

What about the 25,000,000 people that are dependent on the $25,000,000 of money? In making these estimates I would say that $2,200,000 of that $11,000,000 tax on matches would fall on them, although they are destitute or close to that line. Who then will pay it? This Congress says it must be paid by local people who pay taxes on property, and not by the federal government that has a right to tax the 304 men who receive incomes from $1,000,000 to over $100,000,000. Their income totaling $1,185,000,000.

Had the full limit of this tax been taken it would have taken that group of men with incomes ranging from $1,750,000 to $85,000,000 a year. Yet this tender hearted Congress could not have to have this done, but was willing to assess the people that use matches $11,000,000 a year. The disclosure of the use of $199,000 in Maine election leads us to wonder if any of the $28,000,000 used for propaganda by the Associated Industries (revealed by this same commission) could influence their opinions and political views.

The releasing of these rich men of income taxes that they admit would be $17,000,000 per year (I believe this figure to be grossly underestimated) takes from the treasury a sum that would equal the $11,000,000 tax on matches. The salary of the President and all of our senators and representatives and have over a million left.

Had the tax remained, the poorest of these rich men would still have received aside from his income tax and all exempted incomes, an income seventeen times as large as the president of the United States.

How charitable they are toward the rich and exacting on the poor. "Let the candied tongue lick absurd pomp and crook the pregnant hinges of the knee where thrift may follow fawning."
